

Friday Focus March 2020 – Energetic Levels of Awareness

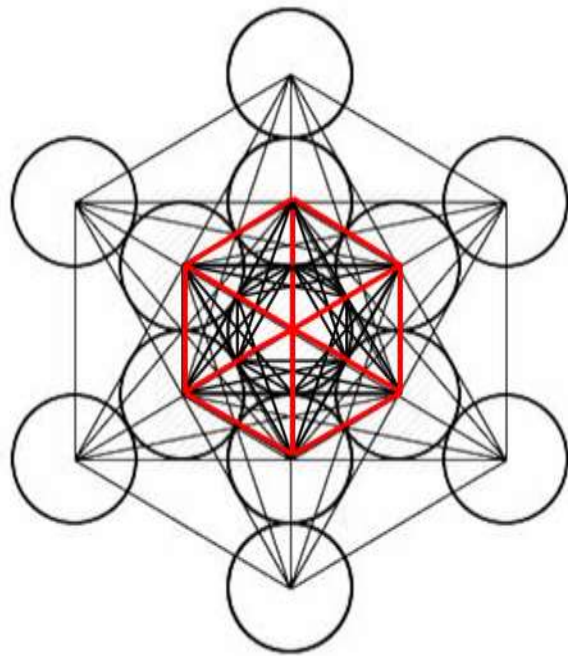

Our planet Earth exists in one of countless energetic structures called Dimensional Matrices. These intricate and specifically structured compartmentalized energy systems contain the Divine Blueprint structure of any Matrix and each structure contains 9 sets of 3 compartments which we commonly refer to as cubes and together they form a density or harmonic universe. They are created by the polarization of what are called Partiki or ante-particle units of consciousness into Partika or anti-particles and Particum or particles.

There exists a perpetual motion of "fission" and "fusion" (separation and replication) taking place within the Partiki units into Partika and Particum units which is called "Partiki Phasing" and this is the basis of what is known as the Divine Trinity. The Partiki phasing results in a "flashing on and off" of units of consciousness which, when grouped together, form "flash-line sequences", sort of like writing lines of computer codes. Flash-line sequences make up the structure of ALL creation, ALL Life Forms, including what we may see as protons, neutrons and electrons in our Earth Reality Field (or hologram).

These groups of 3 compartments can be thought of as "Platforms of Perception" or reality fields. Each Harmonic Universe is also known as a Density and the terms 'Density Level' and 'Harmonic Universe' (HU), are used synonymously. The dimension, densities, and planes are not specific locations; they all interpenetrate each other and occupy the same space. Different levels of consciousness are required to perceive the different planes, densities, or dimensions.

Within the Third Dimension, our planet is going through a monumental shift in consciousness and this shift has been building in momentum for some decades. This means the planet is moving from a three dimensional (3D) density to a five dimensional (5D) density. The concept of densities is influenced by the Law of One. The Law of One tells us that the entire spectrum of life, from subatomic particles to the infinite Creator, is divided into primary levels of densities. These densities are planes of vibratory, physical states of matter that are defined by predominant levels of awareness and laws. Densities classify the level of consciousness and an expanded state of being.

We can say that a Dimension is a state of consciousness and a means of organizing different planes or densities of existence according to the vibratory rate of that which exists. Each dimension has certain sets of laws and principles that are specific to the frequency of that dimension. Each density corresponds to a particular stage in the evolution of consciousness. For instance, lower densities have more rudimentary life-forms operating by simpler laws because they express more of the matter aspect and are therefore more material in nature. Higher density beings express more of the energy aspect and are therefore more subtle and more sophisticated in body, mind, and spirit.

The perception of being is contained within a confined 3-dimensional Density and the perception of linear time and space are a result of the structure and function of what is known as the 3-Dimensional Hologram. Time and space are a result of the Hologram and allow for conscious entities to experience motion and linearity surrounding their holographic experiences.

In absolute terms, we know that Time-Space is an illusion. The creation process, which includes the experience of Time-Space, will be experienced as real within the constraints of the structure of the matrix, as long as that individual consciousness is stationed within the System. A consciousness experiencing a Reality Field within a Hologram experiences itself as separate from the other Densities or Reality Fields because of the presence of specific energetic structures between each Density called Magnetic Repulsion Zones or Void Zones.

These Void zones function to "separate" the flash-line sequences and Units of Consciousness that are stationed at each Density level. These Void Zones are therefore important in creating the illusion of separation between levels of consciousness stationed within each Density and allow for individuated experience and individual expression at each Density level. This is why, as we raise our vibration and frequency, we are able to open these Magnetic Repulsion Zones at will, to experience our other conscious Selves stationed in other Density levels, simultaneously.

This is why it is important to adjust to the dualities and out-of-sync resonance of these two frequencies (3D and 5D). This adjustment produces tension on the body, mind, and spirit in a confusing battle of transformations in the midst of 3D chaos, war, and disease blended with experiences of incredible 5D beauty and bliss.

The adjustment phase is the period in the evolution from 3D to 5D known as spiritual awakening or 'the burning'. In this process one seeks to burn away all karmic residue, clear out all old 3D energies and programs that no longer serve or resonate with your soul and this is where one sheds the body of all lower 3D vibrations that cannot pass into the less-dense 5th-dimensional reality. You will continue to exist in 3D to enjoy physical manifestations but you will begin to perceive and operate in 3D from a 5D perspective. You will be the higher, more advanced, 5D-upgraded version of yourself as you interact in the 3D matrix.

Energetically, the third dimension is a place of very low vibration and enhances the illusion of separation, duality and free will. In 3D, only one timeline (reality) is available and we live with the construct and illusion of the conscious mind of linear time. Our higher self is not integrated into the physical body because it cannot handle the density and low frequency. It is connected with us through our spiritual body, but when our energy centers are blocked, it cannot get through to us.

In the Fifth Dimensional reality, where consciousness prevails and The Universal Law of One is the only real law, you have power over your reality and over your entire life. As you realize your creative potential, and begin to align with the highest vibrational energies of reality, you no longer live in fear and instead, come to absolutely know that you have total and complete power over your reality. This requires reprogramming from 3D resonance frequencies to 5D resonance frequencies.

As long as our conscious mind is in the lead and our heart is closed, the connection to our higher self is blocked most of the time. The communication with our higher self and the higher realms can only be felt and understood with the sub conscious mind. The conscious mind is not able to process this amount of energy. This density is the illusion of duality that allows us to experience light and darkness, positive and negative, good and bad, joy and despair, better and worse. As long as we are choosing the negative aspects, we are repeating our experiences and patterns until we learn to choose unconditional love. That is the beauty of the third dimension. Once we learn unconditional love, we come to what the spiritual world would refer to as "enlightenment" as our frequency raises significantly. We stay in the field of light and love. That way, we overcome our conscious mind's limits. We learn to let our heart take the lead in transforming us into a free spirit. We learn how the universal energies work and how we can create our reality.

On the other hand, the fifth dimension density is the last one of pure light and unconditional love, meaning Source energy is flowing down, before entering the realms of limitations and duality. It is beyond linear time, meaning you are able to access many different timelines / realities. Physical existence is still possible on this plane, although the body is lighter and of a different cellular structure. When the physical body is fully transformed into this structure, there is no pain and no fear. It is the plane of unconditional love and abundance, manifest in the physical. Our higher self has been fully integrated into our physical body and has taken over the guidance. Know that this feels very differently from “channeling” the higher self or other entities. The first time your higher joins with your physical body can be quite overwhelming. It is an intense energetic flow of unconditional love and everything feels light and at ease. Before the higher self can be fully anchored into the physical body, the healing of all bodies (the mental, the emotional and the physical; healing....in other words remembering our wholeness as the ONE) has to be completed. Therefore, your higher self will slip in and out for a while until it can move in permanently. You will know when your higher self is integrated, when you do not question the universal flow and simply trust your journey. You do not feel the need to interfere or control that flow anymore.

In 5D we live according to The Law of One and the Universal Laws, knowing that we create what we think. In this state, we fully trust the energetic flow and understand that our needs are always met and we are always taken care of. Gratitude is always present. When we live in 5D permanently we are in a state of enlightenment.

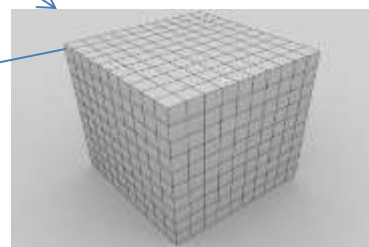

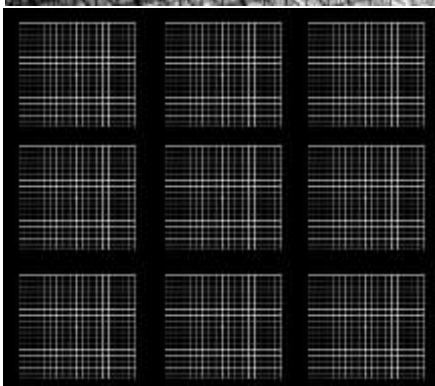

The Spiritual Law of Frequency and Vibration tells us that low, heavy vibrations can always be transmuted and raised by the light, high vibrations of unconditional love, compassion, joy and kindness. So in other words, once someone has raised their frequency into a 5D density level, the return to the lower density dimensions is not possible anymore. They do not attract any darkness and live in the light exclusively. They cannot be seen by people in 3D if they have not already started their own ascension process and are open to the higher frequencies. That is when duality and linear time are dissolving and all there is left is a life in the NOW.

It is time to remember and LIVE YOUR BEST LIFE EVER by applying the mechanics of The Universal Law of One.
