

RED SERPENT

Wavespell:

Red Serpent represents the basic structural apparatus of your motivations, instincts, desires, and your innate movement toward wholeness. Red Serpent asks you to shed the skin of your past and step into the fires of alchemical transmutation. In this, rebirth is revealed. This desire is an innate response encoded in the depths of your being.

With the energy of Red Serpent, you learn to use the innate intelligence of the body. In this culture you may have become separated from this wisdom. It works like this: when you suppress and ignore your issues, your body receives and retains the unconscious metaphors of that which is ignored. This may be expressed through physical symptoms that bring your unconscious issues to conscious awareness. When this happens, work toward a more conscious relationship with your body - and work with the physical metaphors in order to heal yourself on all levels.

Red Serpent's action – its direction in life – is to survive. Red Serpent's animal nature is to protect its own vulnerability through venomous self-defense. It coils its length tightly to demonstrate mass, and bares fangs, spreads its hood or rattles to indicate fierceness. Red Serpent people also have this show of faux largesse that masks the true empowerment of a vital survival skill that wins by being deadly to others. The shadow side of Red Serpent's survival is when its self-preservation is ensured only by impeding others, an act of vampirism. The positive Red Serpent survival mechanism is the opposite of death and draining others of their power: the sexuality we procreate with is the base means of continuing our existence. So Red Serpent has the deathly bite but also the sensual appetite to draw us together in passion, procreation and the release of tension, into exuberance. We survive not only through self-defense but also sexual highs of elemental interconnection.

Red Serpent's power – its offering to strengthen us in turn – is life force. Again, life force can mean one's survival bent over another: paralyzing prey, being the last one alive. This is the harsh part of reptilian instinct – cold-hearted and dispassionate. But any sojourn in Red Serpent energy, and among Red Serpent people, has the opposite, too, of this cool reserve and self-preservation. The hot sweat of base sexuality – hard to speak of culturally but energizing to our hearts, bodies – forces us out of our minds, our spiritual visioning and into the lower chakras – the power centers that fuel all the higher consciousness. We are lifeless when we shut down our sexual desire, trying to rise to eagle height and its big picture outlook. We gather life force from the earth, all those seismic tremors recreated in sensual stimulation and orgasmic release, and our snake aspect is how we commune with the Universal Source and the cycles through seeding, fruition and dissolution into decay. When we embrace Red Serpent, we are assured a full life experience with its aches of loss – the skin layer shed – and renewal. Our sexuality winds along the serpentine path and touches us in ecstasy and sometimes agony, owing to the soft vulnerability of our vital organs.

Red Serpent has the essence of instinct, and in everyday experience this means clairsentient skill – the ability to feel energy in situations, if not having intuitive visions. A thin skin means high sensitivity, and the snake can read moods and energy vibrations, can respond with self-defense to dark emissions or relax into bright light. There's no thought involved, or memory to draw from. It's rather about the moment at hand and what levels of ease or tension it holds. Red Serpent people use their sensitivity to stay safe, and to enjoy the simplicity of sidwinding between danger and havens of peace.

Red Serpent is antipodal, opposite, to Blue Eagle, and this is always a clear relationship of stark difference. While Red Serpent lives in the lower chakras – digestion, procreation, rooting to earth – Blue Eagle is in the skies of our bodies and being. Blue Eagle is vision from above, and Red Serpent is only the below itself without any capacity to experience a broader expanse. Together Red Serpent and Blue Eagle create the plumed serpent deity Quetzalcoatl, their duality synthesized into a sacred whole. Red Serpent forces Blue Eagle to land, settle out of its skyward arc and be vulnerable to the hardships on earth. This hands-on teaching makes a more compassionate bird's eye view when it's time, once more, to rise above surface life towards the heavens.

Red Serpent is analogous, supported by White Wizard. Snake venom is notoriously useful to medicine men, is the antidote to stronger ills. The White Wizard uses snake medicine for the most potent enchantment, that call to a frail body to overcome ache or injury and revitalize its own life force. Red Serpent in turn is supported by the reverence White Wizard offers – other animals are afraid or inclined to attack, but the shaman healer bows to the snake's empowerment and asks, in faith, to share its medicine. In modern symbolism, we see the most sterile version of this relationship in the entwined snake emblem of Western medical practice. These doctors routinely save lives by offering antidotes to greater ailment, small poisons to combat large scale infection.

Red Serpent has a mystical, occult relationship to Yellow Warrior. A snake spends its life weaving in and out of self-defense postures and imitating, as best it can, a hard veil or shell. When it is certain of safety, it can be listless, loose – not coiled but stretched long. A Yellow Warrior is trained to be hard, unyielding in battle, but behind the shield and armor is the frail human with only thin bones as protection. The Red Serpent informs the warrior with mysticism – that instinct to survive, to transcend the grim death presence and emit stronger, enduring life force. But after the battle, when it's time to return to the tribe the Yellow Warrior works to protect, another aspect of life force takes hold: passion, procreation, rest and revitalization. This snake medicine gifts the warrior with a home to defend.

7 Rules of Logic

1. Be not the serpent who has already bitten; retreating from the battle, knowing the slow effect of the poison.
2. All things return, dissolved into their elements.
3. The most important aspect in survival is neither strength or intelligence but rather flexibility and adaptability.
4. Your life reflects what you take personal.
5. Let your sensitivity become compassion and patience.
6. The higher you soar, the less you can be seen by others.
7. Instinct is something which transcends knowledge. You have finer fibers that enable you to perceive truths when logical deduction, or any other willful effort of the brain, is futile

Contemplate these code-words to invoke your key powers:

ENDURE ~ TRANSCEND ~ PRESENCE

Tone 13, symbolized by the spiral, represents the dynamic of movement present in everything and by which everything is ever-changing and vivified by universal, cosmic life force.

The gift of your cosmic identity is to access the power of Omnipresence. Activate your Cosmic powers by being a disciple of the present moment; by cultivating your capacities to be wakeful and receptive to each new now; by going beyond the rational mind and letting yourself think with your ancient heart; by being conscious of your continuum, while still living in the moment; by learning to “ride the spiral,” ascending to higher levels of being; by allowing your cosmic spirit to carry you through the many journeys of trial and triumph this life has to offer; by transcending fears of the future; by transcending regrets of the past; by transcending the limits of linear time and synchronizing with the radial flow of synchronic reality; by recognizing us all to be but evolving children of an ever-unfolding cosmos...
