Yellow Warrior's action – its direction in life – is to question. A modern warrior stance is less likely to launch a physical attack than to upset its enemy through resistance. Yellow Warrior will question the status quo, question the ruling powers, question stagnancy and denial when it binds organic evolution. The cosmic question mark of the glyph is a reference to the rolling and quaking that happens to the planet, and this primal connection to earth is what fuels a warrior's will to fight. Changing stasis, challenging complacency, envisioning a way of living that is closer to the heat and fluidity of our earth – Yellow Warrior pushes for inquiry rather than apathy.

Yellow Warrior's power – its offering to strengthen us in turn – is fearlessness. For all the shielding against feeling, the defense system a Yellow Warrior carries and endures, it is ultimately well-guarded against harm. This breeds fearlessness. When we are practice and prepared in strength and self-preservation strategies, we can go forward into difficult circumstances in placidity and confidence. And at other times, in war, we are so drawn into the moment by extreme hardship, we have no time to anticipate, to be anxious. Our fear thresholds have been met, and so fall away. We, in Yellow Warrior's nature, move from a deeper place than anticipated danger. Yellow Warrior people balance their guarded nature with the willingness to go into situations that others would find intimidating and unsafe. Yellow Warrior has dropped into the moment long ago and can proceed forward while others worry about future outcomes.

Yellow Warrior has the essence of intelligence, which is different than Yellow Human's essence of wisdom. Intelligence is innate skills at sorting what life throws at us, an active mental acuity. Wisdom is insight that has been gathered through experience. Yellow Warrior people are born with keenly observant minds, in part because the energy centers in their torso are shielded or shut down, and the most liberated part of their embodiment is high in their heads. A warrior is not just brute strength, but is a strategist, quick on their feet but also fiery in their minds as they anticipate, defend, and counter offensively in short succession. The battlefield and the journey there amass decisions for our minds, choices that are for our salvation. The mind, like the musculature formed in martial training and combat, is honed and charged with excitement, while also stabilized with cool watchfulness. In this endless exercise of active thinking, intelligence is required and in turn cultivated, refined.

Yellow Warrior is antipodal, opposite, to White Worldbringer. As the antipode power denotes a challenge, it's unsurprising that the warrior's most potent confrontation is with White Worldbringer's power of death. A warrior can be strong, guarded, fierce and intelligent, but always, in the metaphor of battle, death is the ultimate threat. Yellow Warrior simultaneously is motivated by the challenge of death to be more careful, more fierce, more honed in mind, body and spirit. Without death looming, a warrior could be lazier, less focused, so death is a strengthening agent. And yet, as with all antipode powers, the opposition can feel to us in our humanity like stark conflict, like polarity that leads us off center. Certainly, for those of us who fight from pride or self-importance, the death of our ego will serve to create balance. If we fight selflessly for a cause that will serve the whole, death might be the ultimate liberation, the reward for our service. In any case, a warrior has death much more closely within reach than those who are not at the frontline of battle.

Yellow Warrior is analogous, supported by Blue Night. Again, in ancient archetypal imagery, a fighting emissary stays the night in the open, without any shelter that holds permanence. Perhaps there is a tent, but as often there is just open sky. In that night sky is a mythology, a reassurance of divine presence as written in the stars. There is also respite and rest under nightfall, as most battles will occur in the light of day. There may be the fear of attack, but many more shadows to hide within. And when Blue Night is the dream, the full relief of drifting into a surreality that is far from any actual battlefield, that is the greatest support to the Yellow Warrior of all. The war is for a passage forgotten and the psyche unbound from the body's guarded stance. The dream brings something closer to paradise, or expends fears in feverish nightmares that can still be woken from. Blue Night is supported by Yellow Warrior because the content of our nocturnal journeys requires virility, fearlessness and preparedness for living constantly in the present moment of inexplicable fantasia.

Yellow Warrior has a mystical, occult relationship to Red Serpent. As compared to its antipode power of death, Yellow Warrior is illuminated on more subtle levels by Red Serpent's active and instinctual ability to survive. The magic of a warrior life is scraping by and getting through, of being in unbearable circumstances requiring strength, focus and fearlessness and staying alive – or in our modern every day experience, staying true. We fight because we have a faith, and feel an urgency to protect it. When we survive, so does the ideology we fought for, the passion. It prevails. Red Serpent teaches the Yellow Warrior to fight for the core levels of being, the ones closest to the earth. We don't fight for ideas, ideologies as much as what really moves us in our embodiment – what we feel low in our chakras, our attachment to family, community, beloved, and our own powerful vitality.

ENDURE ~ TRANSCEND ~ PRESENCE

Tone 13, symbolized by the spiral, represents the dynamic of movement present in everything and by which everything is ever-changing and vivified by universal, cosmic life force.

The gift of your cosmic identity is to access the power of Omnipresence. Activate your Cosmic powers by being a disciple of the present moment; by cultivating your capacities to be wakeful and receptive to each new now; by going beyond the rational mind and letting yourself think with your ancient heart; by being conscious of your continuum, while still living in the moment; by learning to “ride the spiral,” ascending to higher levels of being; by allowing your cosmic spirit to carry you through the many journeys of trial and triumph this life has to offer; by transcending fears of the future; by transcending regrets of the past; by transcending the limits of linear time and synchronizing with the radial flow of synchronic reality; by recognizing us all to be but evolving children of an ever-unfolding cosmos...
